1. Describe your overall goals and approach to address identified community issues, needs, and interests through your station's vital local services, such as multiplatform long and short-form content, digital and in-person engagement, education services, community information, partnership support, and other activities, and audiences you reached or new audiences you engaged.

WTMD creates programming that "Connects Artists with Audiences." This simple phrase drives the mission of the station. We produce Baltimore Hit Parade to highlight and connect Maryland musicians with music lovers in our service area. WTMD is heavily involved with the Central Maryland music community and provides both long and short term programming and events that highlight these artists. WTMD holds the annual Baltimore Band Block party to further involve these artists with the station. In-studio performances become digital engagement through video and audio interviews posted on our site and promoted through social media. Over the course of the summer, Our First Thursday Concerts bring approximately 80,000 people to Canton Waterfront Park to experience a variety of Maryland and national bands. These concerts have become more than musical events, they are recognized by local media and civic leaders and important part of the fabric of Baltimore. Created Young at Heart, a Saturday morning music program to engage children and their parents, that features interviews and performances with local artists.

2. Describe key initiatives and the variety of partners with whom you collaborated, including other public media outlets, community nonprofits, government agencies, educational institutions, the business community, teachers and parents, etc. This will illustrate the many ways you're connected across the community and engaged with other important organizations in the area.

Each year WTMD coproduces the Concert For the Chesapeake Bay with Maryland Public Television. This two hour program gives state wide exposure to several local bands and offers ways individuals can become involved with environmental groups helping to reduce pollution in the Chesapeake Bay. WTMD works to support Young Audiences Maryland which provides enhanced education programs with local artists in Maryland public schools. We support Living Classrooms which provides music lessons & art programs to Baltimore City school students. We work with Live Baltimore to bring attention to economic development in Baltimore. We participate in The Baltimore Broadcasters Coalition Ascertainment Day each September to learn more about the needs of non profit groups and the issues surrounding our community. Plus, we make our air time, web site, electronic messaging board and other digital assets available to a number of "street level" non profit groups to promote their activities. Partnered with Garsion Forrest School, Live Baltimore, and Walters Art Museum to produce a series of interactive/participatory concert events for children and parents.

WTMD provides air time to minority artists to discuss issues important to their community during interviews and other performances. 5. Please assess the impact that your CPB funding had on your ability to serve your community. What were you able to do with your grant that you wouldn't be able to do if you didn't receive it?

Without CPB funding, we would have to reduce the size of our staff and reduce various outreach programs/ events such as 1st Thursday Concerts and Live Lunch performances/broadcasts. CPB funding provides our ability to air NPR News & programming and to provide locally produced specialty shows.
