WTMD DOWNTOWN MINUTE

August 18-22

I'm Erik with the Downtown Minute

Downtown Baltimore has been seeing impressive changes over the years, and this summer is no different. Several retail and residential projects have been completed, or are close to being open, and now is the time to live in or visit Downtown.

As residential demand grows, city developers have worked to keep up, creatively converting unused office buildings into cool, modern housing. 520 Park Avenue and 301 North Charles are examples of how historic buildings are repurposed into housing. And as more people move into Downtown, retail has expanded. Restaurants are popping up, bringing Baltimorean's a variety of great food.

To keep up to date with the many new housing, restaurants, and retail establishments opening this summer and fall, visit www.godowntownbaltimore.com.

The Downtown Minute is sponsored by the Downtown Partnership of Baltimore. More information about the events, happenings and economic developments shaping downtown Baltimore is available at godowntownbaltimore.com
